Family Nurse Practitioner Residency Program

The Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP) Community Care Residency Program is a full-time 12-month post-graduate residency program designed in partnership with the Chin Family Institute for Nursing (CFIN) at California State University, Los Angeles (Cal State LA). This program supports the needs of CCALAC member health centers and their patients, while simultaneously providing intensive training and on-the-job experience to new and recently graduated FNPs who are committed to developing their careers as primary care providers.

Through this program, FNP Residents will work at one CCALAC member health center and help increase access to quality primary care for under-resourced populations. FNP Residents will receive didactic lectures incorporated into clinical practice, support and guidance from a Preceptor(s) and Clinical Faculty, which will prepare them for full and autonomous expert care for populations with complex healthcare needs across all life cycles. FNP Residents will also improve their clinical skills, confidence, productivity and job satisfaction, as well as contribute to employer satisfaction and workforce retention. This program is a full-time, paid position, with paid time off and benefits.
