Janice Cordova Garden of Well Being: Re-Blossoming

Dalis Lopez, Lucy Valencia, Miles Tademy

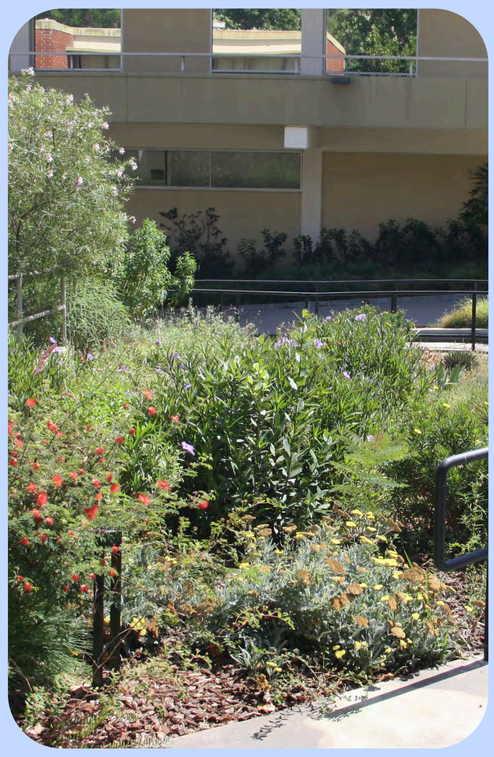

Who was Janice Cordova?

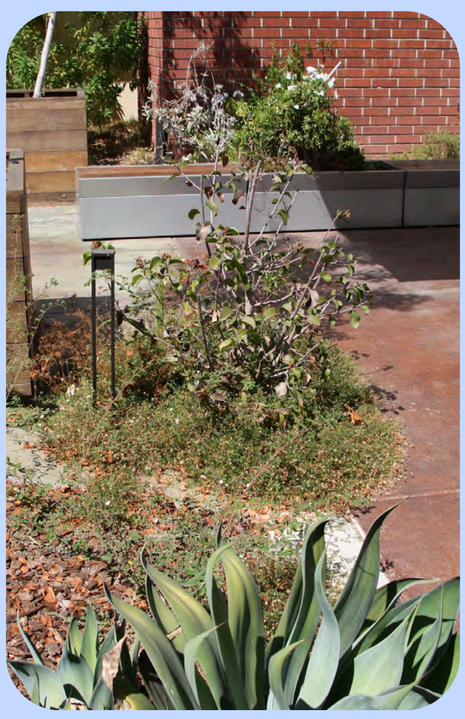

Janice Cordova is the late wife of Cal State La alumnus Richard Cordova. The garden space was created in her honor to commemorate her generous and caring nature by sharing her passions for gardening and art with our campus community.

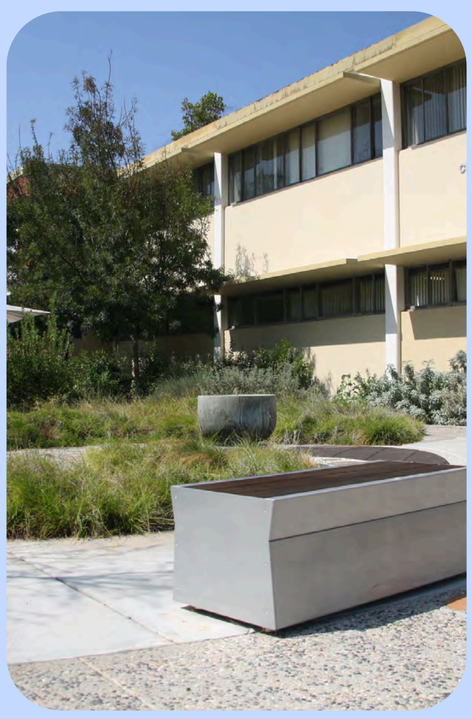

The Garden's Purpose

The Garden is meant to provide a space to relax, meditate, create, and enjoy quiet space in the heart of our busy campus. As visitors walk from the campus' main walkway into and through the garden, they see ever changing scenery with many places to stop and enjoy the flora and art offered.

Recommendations

Despite the garden's meaningful intentions, over a period of a few years, the garden has become unkempt with many features showing wear, such as light and electrical outlets not working and plants uncared for. We would like to see the existing garden furbished and additional plants that support both our physical and mental health.

Acknowledgements

We would like to thank Dr. Choi Chatterjee, Dr. Eric Wood and the Urban Ecology Center for this opportunity to invest in our campus community.
